HENGSTBERGER SYMPOSIUM

Power, Politics and Maritime Governance in the Indian Ocean

July 2–4, 2012

Crucial trade interests, untapped energy resources and mounting security concerns are propelling countries to rethink their strategies in the Indian Ocean. This applies to littoral countries and extra-regional actors like China, Japan, the EU and US, unleashing unprecedented dynamics of competition and cooperation. Scholars from Asia, Europe and the United States will examine historical and cultural networks within the Indian Ocean, emerging structures of maritime governance, evolving forms of alliance building and counter-balancing to discuss whether a 'region' of the Indian Ocean is in the making.
